Event Description:

How Purchasing & Asset Management Can Promote Local Sustainability

Description: Climate change has increased risks for stewards of publicly-owned infrastructure. Organizations are now being required to understand and address how their services are being impacted by new environmental and sustainability mandates. Circular procurement has emerged as a critical tool to align climate risk adaptation, infrastructure asset management, and purchasing.

Join us on June 29th from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. ET for a discussion about the role of purchasing and asset management in promoting sustainability within communities. Hear from Frances Edmonds, Head of Sustainable Impact at HP Canada; Jo-Anne St. Godard, Executive Director at the Circular Innovation Council; and Andrea Westfall, Sustainable Procurement Coordinator at the City of Mississauga followed by a panel discussion moderated by Umesh Kalia, representing the Ontario Public Buyers' Association (OPBA).

Together, they will explore the circular economy, circular procurement, and how purchasing can be a lever for addressing climate risk. They look forward to discussing the benefits and insights from circular / sustainable procurement efforts in Ontario municipalities.
